After 13 years of professional nursing experience in multiple modalities, I have learned the intricacies of the delicate balance that is required to provide excellent, customer focused, best practice based nursing care. Communication, compassion, and caring make up the pyramid of success for the professional caregiver. In today's fast paced clinical setting, it is important to remember that patients can be overwhelmed and that many times they need a strong anchor in the midst of their personal crisis. Nurses have the tools to be anchors for not only the consumers of medical care, but also for the institution of health care as a whole. We only need apply them.
