I was a CNA for 10 years before getting my LPN in 2010, I love being a nurse....I truly believe I was meant to be a nurse, I didn't get into nursing for the money, I got into nursing because I love taking care of people and maybe just making at least one person's day. I am definitely not the type of nurse that thinks I am too good to still do CNA work, I'll work the floor if need be, the title behind my name does not define me, my character does, and if you don't have a good character then you probably shouldn't be in nursing and always remember teamwork is dream work
