Additional Information

Five years working in Prep/Recovery. I have greeted patients. I have completed a full respiratory and cardiac assessment. I have interpreted all EKG readings prior to entry into the endoscopy suite. On recovery, I have monitored vital signs; including EKG rhythms. I have determined, based on protocol for moderate sedation (or if Propofol administration is required) on patient ability to be discharged. Safety is always paramount with patient discharge and protocol is well place. In the role of moderate sedation RN (when used by a MD whom prefers Versed and Fentanyl),

I was responsible for the general progression of the endoscopy day. I would collaborate with the pre/recovery staff RNs in order to facilitate a proper and safe environment for the patients and the endoscopy staff. Scheduling of patient times would be part of my ideas: as well as: proper medication for the patients and prescribed by the MD. By using a multi-faceted approach to care for my staff and patients: I believe that my abilities will be a welcome asset to any group whom is looking for a experienced, well rounded BSN.

In the PACU role; I assisted in the care of the immediately completed surgical patient. My realm included: hernioplasty, Ceasarian births, total joint (knee, hip) replacements, post-pacemaker placement, total abdominal and vaginal hysterectomies, bowel resections, tonsill and adenoid removal, pediatric cases that required surgery, and the like. My average was two recoveries at a time with other PACU RN's available if required. I would coordinate with the family members in the surgical waiting room and kept them up to date in the status of their surgical client. I would also inform the floor RN in the patient's arrival and time for sending to the floor. I would inform the receiving RN of any equipment that would need to be supplied for the continued care of the patient. If the RN was unable to supply; I would provide my equipment and collaborate with the SPD department for replacement. This provides another facet of my abilities as an experienced, professional BSN.
