Infection Control & Education Nurse Nurse Supervisor

April 2020 to Sept 2020

As nurse supervisor I work to find and isolate disease outbreaks in hospitals, as well as to determine ways to minimize spread of infections. I help ensure that proper infection control protocols, from hand washing to wearing masks when necessary, are being followed by all hospital staff members. I also educate others on how to recognize and prevent disease outbreaks. As an infection control nurse, I sometimes serve as disease detectives, searching for the origin of a particular germ and studying its characteristics, such as drug resistance. As Infectious disease nurse also work with doctors and researchers to develop new ways to treat diseases caused by microbes.
